Why here? Why now? Why you?

The East Midlands is one of Europe's leading international business locations and has been at the heart of the UK's manufacturing and industrial success for decades. With a high proportion of companies trading globally across all sizes and business sectors, the region has an impressive proven track record of attracting inward investment. The next decade will present the unique combination of the greatest challenges and tremendous opportunities international business can offer.

A 700-acre inland port at the heart of Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire and Leicestershire

As the Brexit deadline counts down, the East Midlands has experienced massive inward investment in infrastructure through projects like East Midlands Gateway Rail Freight Interchange. East Midlands Gateway is a 700-acre 'inland port' which combines links to the M1 and East Midlands Airport with a major new rail freight terminal. Built in six phases, all work is due to be completed by the end of 2019.

Investment connecting the Midlands, and the wider UK, into the global economy

East Midlands Airport – the UK's largest pure freight airport – is close to the very centre of England and its proximity to the M1 provides easy road access to the whole of the UK. The addition of East Midlands Gateway Rail Freight Interchange and a partnership with Highways England and other highways authorities means there will also be £35m of road improvements associated with East Midlands Gateway, including better connections at Junction 24 and Junction 24A of the M1.

Your business is located in the UK's fast emerging major European gateway

The Midlands' economy is worth £217.7bn and the Government is positioning the Midlands as a major UK and European gateway strategically unlocking the region's potential which will support growth across every sector. The investment is clear to anyone who travels the M1 where Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire and Leicestershire meet. This investment, the changes in European trade and the Government's focus to grow international business in the region means your business is uniquely positioned in one of the most strategic locations in the UK for growth in international trade.

This new International Trade Membership will ensure you are kept informed and well positioned to take full advantage.
